

MIPMAC SIGNS AGREEMENT WITH UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

The Manitoba Institute and University College of the North (UCN) are excited to be offering MIPMAC's Supply Management Training program commencing the Fall of 2010.

In July, MIPMAC's Peter Buscemi and Jocelyn Wilson finalized the agreement with UCN. The Supply Management Training program consists of four Introduction courses along with six seminars.

MIPMAC President, Peter Buscemi states that "This is a tremendous moment for the Manitoba Institute. It will provide many benefits ranging from servicing our existing Northern members to expanding our reach in supply management training for the various industries located in Northern Manitoba".

UCN's Dean of Faculty of Business, Suzanne Barbeau-Bracegirdle, notes that "this is an excellent example of the benefits that partnerships bring to all involved – learners now have the opportunity to complete a professional credential closer to home. This is important for individuals, their families and employers."

The University College of the North is an institution devoted to the community and northern development. Campuses are located in The Pas and Thompson, and programs and services are delivered through a network of regional centers in 12 northern communities.

With industries such as mining, forestry, transportation, and hydroelectricity, this will provide opportunities for Northern Manitobans to obtain education and training.
